

Eleni Mavragani is Assistant Professor in Marketing, at the Department of Accounting and Finance, School of Business Administration, at the University of Macedonia, and Adjunct Lecturer and Course Leader at the Hellenic Open University. She gained a BA from the University of Piraeus, MBA and a PhD in Marketing from the University of the Aegean. She has published several articles in academic journals, books and scientific conferences. She has taught courses in marketing and tourism in several universities and colleges and she has also been involved in European financed projects. Her research interests include strategic marketing, services marketing and tourism and marketing.