

Charalambos Anthopoulos

Professor of Law and Administration, Hellenic Open University

Email to: anth@eap.gr

Charalambos Anthopoulos is a Professor of Law and Administration at the Hellenic Open University. He has lectured Constitutional Law and Media Law at the Law School of the Aristotle University of Thessaloniki and Ethics of Media at the Panteion University LLM program 'Psychology and Media'. He is the author of the books: The Constitutional Right to Freedom of Conscience (1992), The problem of the Functional Limitations of Fundamental Rights (1993), Volunteering, Solidarity and Democracy (2000), Protection against racism and freedom information (2000), New Dimensions of Fundamental Rights (2001), Electoral systems and Constitutional Commitments (2016). He is a member of the Greek Data Protection Authority and Coordinator Editor of the Public Law Gazette of Sakkoulas Publications. His research interests include issues of Constitutional Law, Fundamental Rights Protection, Judicial Review, Democracy and political theory.

Selected Publications

1. Digital platforms and control of the information contents online, in: Journal of Administrative Law, 1/2021, 19-26.
2. Pandemic, right to health and the duty of solidarity, in: Journal of Administrative Law, 1/2020, 28-34
3. Vote of confidence against vote of individual no-confidence, in: Themistocles and Dimitris Tsatsos Foundation/Nicosia University, Law Faculty, Public Administration after the crisis, 2019, 25-34.
4. [with Ch. Akrivopoulou] Coalition Governments and Coalition Agreements, in: Department of Management, Department of Public Administration, Panteion University, Public Administration, 2019, 493-506.
5. The Constitution behind the Constitution: History and critique of the concept of the real Constitution: in The Constitution in progress, Honor of Antonis Manitakis, Sakkoulas Publications, Athens – Thessaloniki, 2019, 175-209.
6. Greece- Italy 2018-1965: two crises in comparison, in: Journal of Administrative Law 2/2018, 148-155.
7. The freedom of Revisory Parliament, in: Journal of Administrative Law, 5/2018, 522-534.