

Vassilis Efthymiou

Adjunct lecturer at the department of Accounting & Finance of Athens University of Economics and Business since 2013. He has taught undergraduate and postgraduate students at the department of Accounting & Finance of Athens University of Economics and Business, and seminars at the Hellenic Banks Institute. He graduated from the department of Accounting & Finance of the London School of Economics and Political Science and holds an MSc in Applied Economics from the department of Economic Science and a PhD from the department of Accounting & Finance of the Athens University of Economics and Business. His research interests focus on financial management and business valuation, stock and bond markets, and business planning and financing of energy communities developing renewable energy production projects.

Selected Publications

---

1. Assessment methodology and analysis for financing instruments for funding renewable energy communities in small EU islands, Vassilis Efthymiou, George Leledakis, George Stamoulis, Emmanouil Pyrgiotakis, Antonis Dimakis, ISLET, 2024.
2. Analysis of Energy Communities' financing mechanisms for the EU islands, Vassilis Efthymiou, Dimitra Karadimou, George Leledakis, George Stamoulis, Emmanouil Pyrgiotakis, Antonis Dimakis, ISLET, 2024.
3. Intraday Analysis of the Limit Order Bias on the Ex-Dividend Day of U.S. Common Stocks, Vassilis Efthymiou, Athanasios Episcopos, George Leledakis, Emmanouil Pyrgiotakis, International Review of Economics and Finance, 2021, 72, 405–421.
4. The price impact of the disposition effect on the ex-dividend day of NYSE and AMEX common stocks, Vassilis Efthymiou, George Leledakis, Quantitative Finance, 2014, 14:4, 711-724.